Outcome of Peer Teaching

Each of these peer-teaching situations served to instill the facilitator with an awareness of concepts, presentation, and leadership skills; enabled the active involvement of learners in the learning process; cultivated a collaborative classroom atmosphere; and facilitated peer-to-peer dialogues. From another perspective, the session also developed the student teacher in academic confidence and helped awaken the B.Com. (Hons.) 2nd Semester NEP students in Human Resource Management. Altogether, the session contributed toward experiential learning, thus fostering the learner-centric view of the NEP framework.
